Second-Class Male A Book of Misguided Letters

Stan Madeley

Description

Cabaret star, nobleman, plastics expert, chisel thrower, owl warden, porn star, rubber duck magnate, conservationist and bête noir of Esther Rantzen - Stan Madeley is all these things, and much more. Whether he's offering himself up for adoption to Elton John or attempting to hypnotize Derren Brown - by letter - Stan Madeley (by deed poll) is a fearless and dynamic correspondent. Boldly billing himself as Britain's top Richard Madeley lookalike, he uses his 'celebrity status' as an innovative excuse to plague, pester and pen letters to many well-known faces, politicians and organisations, with hilarious results. Written in the bestselling tradition of the Henry Root and Robin Cooper letters, Second-Class Male is a witty and joyously surreal collection from an extraordinary new voice.

Sales Points

- A farcical collection of spoof letters from a major new comedy talent
- Featuring replies from Alan Bennett, Sir David Attenborough, Terry Gilliam, John Prescott, Mr Kipling, Terry Wogan, the British Flute Society, some nuns, as well as a terse email response from Su Pollard's assistant
- From the publishers of Robin Cooper's bestselling The Timewaster Letters, which has sold over 230,000 copies to date

Reviews

- 'The Henry Root de nos jours' - The Independent on Sunday
